

ELIMINATE RACISM

SAKEJ HENDERSON, a Harvard Law School graduate, has created litigation strategies to restore Aboriginal culture, institutions and rights. During the constitutional process (1978-1993) in Canada, he served as a constitutional advisor for the Míkmaq nation and the Assembly of First Nations. In 2005, he was the recipient of the National Aboriginal Achievement Award for Law and Justice. He is a noted international human rights lawyer and an international authority on protecting Indigenous heritage, knowledge, and culture. Currently, Sakej Henderson is Research Director, Native Law Centre, University of Saskatchewan.

JAMIE BATTISTE, from Eskasoni First Nation is a graduate of Dalhousie Law School. The Assembly of First Nations chose Jaime to represent Canadian First Nations Youth at the First Ministers Conference on Aboriginal Affairs in Kelowna. Jamie Battiste was one of 15 Aboriginal representatives included in focused discussions with the Prime Minister, Cabinet Members, Premiers, Chiefs and Elders from across Canada. Battiste was also the Aboriginal First Nations Youth Role Model for 2004-2005. Currently, Jamie Battiste is a Lecturer in Mi'kmaq Studies at Cape Breton University.

Support Aboriginal Rights Which Way Forward?

Please attend a public talk with

Sakej Henderson
Native Law Centre of Canada

Jaime Battiste
Cape Breton University

Wednesday
MARCH 21, 7:00 pm

Theatre A, Burke Building (Inglis St.)
Saint Mary's University
923 Robie St., Halifax

In recognition of the International Day for the Elimination of Racism

sponsored by the Metro Coalition for a Non-Racist Society (902.454.5784)