

Fardy to attend parliamentary association workshop on FOI

from the Chronicle Herald

Nov. 5, 2006

The head of Right to Know Nova Scotia has been invited to attend a freedom-of-information workshop organized by the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association.

Darce Fardy, the province's former review officer for the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act, will head to Dominica later this month.

The Commonwealth Parliamentary Association's mission is to advance parliamentary democracy in Commonwealth countries. The number of these countries adopting freedom-of-information legislation is growing every year.